Three Ways to Save on Your Electric Bill

James Goodson, Chairman, Board of Trustees

About half of your electric bill is a direct reflection of the weather. With spring comes milder temperatures, which usually means lower power bills. But this doesn't mean it is time to stop thinking about how much electricity we are using.

The cost of wholesale electricity, a factor beyond the control of Pee Dee Electric Cooperative, is expected to continue to rise. The best way we can combat this rising cost is through conservation.

Our first suggestion to help you lower your electric bill is setting your thermostat as close to the outside temperature as possible. During the summer in South Carolina, it isn't uncommon for temperatures to rise to 95 degrees. If your cooling system is trying to cool your home to 72 degrees, it will be working to change the temperature 23 degrees, which consumes a great deal of electricity. For every two degrees above 72 you set your thermostat, you save about five percent in cooling costs. That money adds up. Keep your temperature at 78 — and save!

The second piece of advice is to invest in home weatherization measures. These will save you money by reducing your energy consumption when temperatures rise. Weatherizing your home will also keep a great deal of the strain off a home's cooling and heating system. A standard exterior door is 36 inches wide. A quarter-inch gap at the bottom of that door is equivalent to having a nine-inch hole in an exterior wall. These gaps around doors and windows where air can leak out of your home need to be sealed.

Home improvement stores have home weatherization products. Look around and see what small changes you can make now that will help when the temperature rises. Having your cooling and heating system checked annually to be sure it is in good working order is also an excellent idea, and changing the air filter every month is one of the most inexpensive things you can do to insure proper operation.

The third thing we suggest is using compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFLs). Pee Dee Electric Cooperative is sending all residential members another CFL as part of the Do the Light Switch campaign.

Find a good spot to substitute this CFL for one of the incandescent bulbs in your home. CFLs don't emit nearly as much heat as "regular" light bulbs, and you'll save energy and lots of money using them.

There are many other ways, simple and inexpensive ways, to save on your bill, such as turning off lights when leaving a room, unplugging unnecessary electronics when not in use and adjusting the settings on your water heater to 120 degrees.

Act now, so you'll be prepared when the temperature rises in the near future.

The best way we can combat energy's rising costs is through conservation

Unclaimed Capital Credits

Dear Member-Owners:

The following is a complete list of member-owners or former member-owners whose capital credit checks issued in 2007 and 2008 were returned to Pee Dee Electric Cooperative due to an incorrect or undeliverable address.

If your name is on the list, please contact Pee Dee Electric at (843) 665-4070 or (toll-free) (866) 747-0060, to have a check reissued. Please be prepared to provide information that will allow verification of your identity.

Jeff's Energy Tip

This month, I'm in the attic of a typical member-owner of Pee Dee Electric Cooperative. As you can tell, this attic is very well insulated. This member just installed blown-in insulation which increased the R-value. R-value ratings are used to measure insulation material's ability to resist heat flow. The higher the R-value, the more effective it is. Residential insulation should be purchased based on its R-value, not thickness or weight. I recommend at least an R-30 in home attics.

High utility bills in summer and winter can often be traced to air leaks in your home's envelope, inefficient windows or inefficient or incorrectly installed heating and cooling equipment, or poorly sealed and insulated ducts.

Typically, the biggest attic air leaks are found where the walls meet the attic floor, above drop ceilings and overhangs, and behind attic walls. Look for dirty or discolored insulation to find the leaks — this indicates that air is moving through the insulation material. There are lots of other "holes" in the attic ceiling that should also be sealed, such as: recessed "can" lights, plumbing stacks, electrical wires, attic hatches or doors, around chimneys or flues, and duct chases. Insulating these areas plus 12 to 14 inches of blown insulation can save you big bucks! Fifty to 70 percent of your total energy bill goes for cooling in the summer and heating in the winter.

Here are some other tips how to save money on your power bill during the warmer weather:

- Use a programmable thermostat and set it to 78°
- Make sure your ceiling fans are blowing down

By Jeff Singletary, PDEC Energy Expert

- Change the filters in your air conditioning unit monthly
- Close shades and drapes during the day to keep heat out
- Ensure windows and doors are properly weatherstripped
- Try not to use roof-top, power ventilators for attic exhaust — they may pull cooled air from your home
- Have your cooling system checked yearly by a certified technician
- Keep "Fresh Air" vents on window units closed
- Make sure floor registers are not blocked
- Always run your system on "Auto." Running it on "On" uses more electricity and can decrease your air conditioner's ability to remove moisture
- Keep your garage door down as much as possible. It stays cooler in the summer

Welvista - A GODSEND FOR THE UNINSURED

More than 100,000 free prescriptions a year in South Carolina

There are more than 700,000 people living in South Carolina who are uninsured. Trying to reach this number of people might seem daunting to some. Ken Trogdon is ready. He's the CEO of Welvista, a statewide nonprofit providing access to prescription medication to those who otherwise would not receive it. "We're the only statewide organization addressing this," he says.

For a $20 annual application fee, members of Welvista receive free prescription medication. Many of Welvista's 12,000 members are too young to qualify for Medicare and make too much money to qualify for Medicaid, but don't have enough money to afford insurance. "With this economy, more people are losing their benefits and just trying to get by. What's happening is they are either losing their benefits or [their benefits are] being cut or they're being laid off," explains Trogdon. "A lot of these folks have chronic disease and have nowhere to turn but their local emergency room." It's a pricey problem for employers and the state's medical system, but a problem Trogdon is working to relieve.

A serious car accident 13 years ago put Trogdon face-to-face with the struggles and anguish of South Carolina's uninsured. While Trogdon says he was lucky enough to have insurance that covered his medical expenses, he met many folks who were not. Those relationships sparked a passion for Trogdon to try to help South Carolina's uninsured workers. More than a decade later, Welvista fills well over 100,000 prescriptions each year, handing out more than $34-million worth of prescription drugs to the uninsured last year.

Through relationships and Welvista's strong reputation, several of the nation's largest pharmaceutical companies have agreed to participate by offering millions of dollars' worth of prescription medication to South Carolina residents for free. "We've got a good reputation which has allowed us to open a lot of doors with companies that we probably wouldn't otherwise be able to gain traction with," explains Trogdon. Companies like Lilly, Pfizer, Bristol-Myers Squibb, Merck and Takeda have all joined the program.

Welvista is assisting SC's children and adults with dental health through a division called "Smiles." Smiles operates centers in Dillon, Manning and Allendale plus part-time centers in Summerton and Charleston. The centers treat about 4,000 children each school year. In 2008, 31,888 cavities were filled, thanks to the program. Trogdon cited a recent case involving a daycare worker who lost her front teeth. "She was using wax to cover the gap in her mouth," says Trogdon. "Volunteer dentists were able to treat her." Plus, the woman was fighting a chronic disease, didn't have a physician, and couldn't afford insurance on her $8/hour job. "One of her co-workers heard me interviewed on National Public Radio. Within 24 to 48 hours, we were able to get her on the program," says Trogdon. "She's been able to keep her job and to not only receive her medications, but also to receive significant dental assistance."

Trogdon hopes thousands more uninsured residents in South Carolina will join Welvista. He says the organization is prepared to more than double its membership to 30,000 over the next three years. "Anyone who is uninsured can apply for the Welvista program. We can help you get signed up to receive free prescription medication." The organization hopes to reach more people in the Pee Dee in the coming months and years. "We can choose to close our eyes or choose to do something," says Trogdon. "I'm really fortunate that I'm able to go to work every day and make a difference in people's lives."

For an application, call toll-free, (800) 763-0059 or log onto the Web site, welvista.org. Applications may also be picked up at free clinics. The only patient charge is a yearly $20 application fee. All medication is free to the patient once approved for the Welvista program. To qualify, a patient's income must fall below 200 percent of the poverty level, cannot receive Medicaid, Medicare or VA benefits and must not be covered by private insurance.
